IN AN EMERGENCY:

Get medical help nearby.

If you need an ambulance, tell them where you are.

If you have questions or concerns, call the pesticide regulatory agency.

Stay out of treated areas when told, and whenever you see signs like this displayed. When you see a pesticide application taking place, stay back. Applicators must suspend their work if you get too close.

Wash your hands before you eat, drink, or chew gum. Also, wash before smoking, using the toilet, or using your phone.

Protect your body from pesticide residue. Wear long-sleeved shirts and long pants when working. Also, wear shoes, socks, and a hat or scarf.

Wash your body and hair with soap or shampoo right after work; then put on clean clothes.

When pesticides are spilled or sprayed on your body, wash immediately. Water, soap, and towels must be provided nearby. Use the nearest clean water, including springs, streams, and lakes, if they are closer to you. After that, wash your body and hair with soap or shampoo as soon as possible. Put on clean clothes.

Wash your work clothes before wearing them again. Wash them separately from other clothes.

Get medical help as soon as possible if you think pesticides caused an injury or illness.
